

ERRATUM

We regret to inform the readers that a line was omitted on the last sentence of the first paragraph on page 30 of the article "Super-Optimizing Analysis and Philippine Policy Problems" by Stuart S. Nagel which appeared in Vol. 35, No. 1 (January 1991) of the Philippine Journal of Public Administration. The said sentence currently reads as:

This idea of retaining the bases along with an inevitable at least partial phaseout and massive credits for upgrading the Philippine economy should not be approached as a matter that can be resolved to the mutual benefits of all sides in the sense of a super-optimum solution with all major viewpoints coming out ahead of their initial best expectations.

This should read as:

This idea of retaining the bases along with an inevitable at least partial phaseout and massive credits for upgrading the Philippine economy should not be approached as a matter of traditional negotiation and game playing; rather it should be approached as a matter that can be resolved to the mutual benefits of all sides in the sense of a super-optimum solution with all major viewpoints coming out ahead of their initial best expectations.
