

About the Contributors

Antonio P. Contreras, a full Professor at the Department of Political Science of the De La Salle University in Manila, obtained his Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Hawaii at Manoa under an East-West Center Graduate Fellowship. His current research interests include the role of non-state actors in politics, the politics of everyday life, and the politics in non-state domains, such as the mass media and popular culture. He has been awarded a Fulbright Senior Fellowship and was a Visiting Scholar affiliated with the Department of Political Science of the University of Hawaii in the Spring Term 2009 where he conducted research on the political imaginations of Filipino-American students in Hawaii, and taught a course on the politics of everyday life in the Philippines. Email: antonio.contreras@dlsu.edu.ph

Teresa S. Encarnacion Tadem is Director of the Third World Studies Center and Professor of Political Science, College of Social Sciences and Philosophy, University of the Philippines, Diliman. She obtained her Ph.D. in Politics and Public Administration from the University of Hong Kong in 1997. She is editor of a 2009 publication on Localizing and Transnationalizing Contentious Politics: Global Civil Society Movements in the Philippines, published by the United Nations Research Institute for Social Development (UNRISD) and Lexington Books, a division of Rowman & Littlefield Publishers, Inc. Email: teresatadem@gmail.com

Eric Vincent C. Batalla is Associate Professor and the current chair of the Political Science Department, De La Salle University. He has a Ph.D. in Development Science from Hiroshima University, Japan. His most recent academic publications are "Metro Manila Traffic Regulation and the Public Bus Industry," Asia Pacific Social Science Review (June 2005) and "Japan's Economic Expansion and Interactions with the Chinese in Philippine Commerce Prior to World War II," Chinese Business History (Fall, 2004). He was Visiting Professor at Hiroshima University (2006) and Visiting Scholar at Waseda University (2003-2004). He currently holds the L.R. Aguinaldo Professorial Chair in Japan-Philippine Trade Relations in DLSU. His current research programs cover Philippine and East Asian development, with emphasis on Japan. Email: eric.batalla@dlsu.edu.ph

Julio C. Teehankee is an Associate Professor and Chair of the International Studies Department at De La Salle University-Manila (DLSU-M). Currently, he is President of the Asian Political and International Studies Association (APISA). He completed his Ph.D. in Development Studies (with distinction) from DLSU-M. Recently, he was a Japan Foundation fellow at the Graduate School of Law and Politics, the University of Tokyo. His most recent publications are: "Citizen-Party Linkages: Failure to Connect?" In Herberg, M. (Ed.) Reforming the Philippine Party System: Ideas and Initiatives, Debates and Dynamics. Friedrich Ebert Stiftung (2009); and "Synthesis and Distillation of Policy Issues: What Should Governments Do? The Global Financial Crisis as a Market and Government Failure," Asia-Pacific Social Science Review, Volume 9, No 1 (2009). Email: julio.teehankee@dlsu.edu.ph

Rosalie Arcala Hall is an Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of the Philippines-Visayas, Miagao, Iloilo. She was recently affiliated with the Department of Political Science, Loyola University Chicago as a Fulbright Visiting Scholar. She finished her Ph.D. in International and Public Affairs in 2002 at Northeastern University, Boston, MA. In recent years, she completed locally and internationally-funded research projects in the Philippines, Japan, Austria, Indonesia and East Timor concerning civil-military relations during disaster response, counterinsurgency operations and overseas deployment. Email: rosaliearcalahall@pinoymac.org